Corn Social Held—Coroner Investigating Riley Death—Union Meeting on Sunday Afternoon—Rainfall Over an Inch—Borough Interests.

Thomas Briggs, who came here recently for rest and quiet, is to return to his home in Providence today. Dr. O. C. Sharpe and Charles S. Francis are among those who are in Boston today, attending the Yale-Harvard game.

Miss Nellie Fournier of the West Side visited friends in Worcester Friday.

Rev. A. J. Clup has resigned as pastor of the United Church in Brooklyn to accept a call to Brewster, Mass.

Woman Pastor on Vacation.

Miss Lydia Hartig, pastor of the Congregational church at South Killingly, is visiting relatives in Newark, N. J., the church being closed until December 10.

Mrs. Henry Bates, critically ill, is being cared for at the residence, Miss Belle Eaton of Oneco.

Corn Social.

At the home of Mrs. Joseph Codding on Winter street, a corn social was held Friday evening.

Dr. N. J. Hibbard is in Boston today, attending the Yale-Harvard football game.

Charles Knack of Waterbury, formerly of Danielson, was a visitor in town Friday.

Hog's Melt Prognostication.

A Canterbury deer, depending upon a hog's melt for a guide, says the indications are for a winter mild at the beginning, then more severe, then mild again, all of which makes not such a bad combination.

Wen Ghost Story Prize.

Louis Pitts of East Killingly has been awarded a $5 prize by a Waterbury paper for writing the best ghost story received in a contest. The ghost that figures in this tale was located in the town of Danielson, near the Wolf Den, which is perfectly safe territory for a ghost to do business in.

Owner of Auto Has Sympathy.

Much sympathy is expressed for Dr. E. Letts in the matter of the accident in which his automobile struck John Riley of Dayville and injured the man so badly that he died. Coroner Bill, in the course of his investigation of the affair had persons possessing information in relation to it at his office on Friday.

Series of Whists.

Instead of the annual fair that has usually been held, a series of whist parties have been given in the hall of St. James' school building during the past two months, and they have been largely attended each week by the parishioners; adding a considerable sum to the revenues of the church during the year that is coming to a close.

Wood Cutting at East Killingly.

Byron Lewis, who owns many acres of woodland in East Killingly and that vicinity, has put chops at work this week and they will be in the woods until spring. Several thousand cords of wood are to be cut and stacked. The men will be in their camps until well into the spring.

Thanksgiving Committee.

Rev. Clarence H. Barber, Henry M. Danielson, Mrs. Susan Stone and Miss Nellie Gleason have been named a committee of the Westfield Congregational church to receive contributions of food, clothing or money that may be given to a Thanksgiving offering for some of the needy of the borough.

Will Address Union Meeting.

Rev. W. S. McIntyre, secretary of the Local's day, will be in Danielson Sunday attending the annual meeting of the

Home Missionary Society Hears Report

The Home Missionary society of the Methodist church met Friday afternoon with Mrs. C. D. King of Roxbury street. A report was given of the annual conference held in Pawtucket during the early part of this month, and other business was considered.

Holiday Plans.

Next Thursday, Thanksgiving day, will be generally observed in Danielson as a holiday. The mills and factories will be closed and also a majority of the stores, either for all or part of the day. Many social and entertaining events have been arranged.

Heavy Rainfall.

More than an inch of rain came down in the heavy fall of Friday. The streams in this section upon which the large manufacturing plants are in part dependent for power are now up to near their normal fall level and the water shortage experienced last year is not apt to recur.

District Superintendent to Preach.

Rev. J. H. Newland, district superintendent of the jurisdiction of which southern New England conference, will preach the sermon at the 7 o'clock service at the Methodist church Sunday evening. Rev. Mr. Newland has visited many of the Methodist churches in this part of the country during the past three weeks.

Thanksgiving Sunday at Wauregan.

There is to be a special Thanksgiving service at the Congregational church in Wauregan on Sunday morning and afternoon. The following is the musical programme arranged for the morning service: Prelude; Vincent; To Deum; Dudley Buck; postlude; Vincent; Responses; Leaser; The Heavens Are Telling; Haydn; Postlude; Vincent.

No Denial Reached.

Just how to figure out a right of way from the eastern terminus of the new bridge proposed to replace the one across the Assawamuck river near the mill of the Danielson Worsted Co. and avoid the state property at the primary is proving a matter of some proposition, but this may be done eventually. In the meantime no progress has been made within the past few days.

Skeleton of Unknown Man Found in Woods Near Pomfret—Frank A. Bellefontaine, Tattooed Man in Town—Judge Fuller to Stop Liquor Selling to Blacklisted Men.

What may be the first evidence in a murder mystery or no more than the evidence of the unfortunate ending of a life of greater or lesser value came to light Friday in the form of a skeleton of a man found in a lonely spot in the woods in the town of Pomfret, back of the Bruce farm, near East Meadow brook. Thomas Baker and his grandson, Randall Baker, out for a day in the woods, made the gruesome find. The men are both residents of Pomfret.

A report of the matter was made to the selectmen of the town and later an investigation was made. Dr. S. H. Overlock, Pomfret, viewing the remains.

An examination of the skeleton indicated that it was of a man of medium height; the teeth show that he was probably of middle age; but there was nothing to show who he was or how he came to die in such a secluded, out of the way place. A solitary nickel and a few shavings were found near the skeleton. The man was dressed in what was probably a brown coat and a black velvet waistcoat. A pair of overalls were hanging on a tree near by.

It was the opinion of Dr. Overlock that what remained of the man had lain where it was found for probably a long time, and that he had been killed by a black velvet waistcoat. A pair of overalls were hanging on a tree near by.

Several theories were advanced Friday as to how the man might have died, but none of them contain a clue that in any way tends to help solve the identity of the dead man.

Along about the time that the man must have met his end a gang of Italian workmen were engaged on construction work in connection with putting a dam across the Quinebaug river, above Cotton's bridge, for the Pomfret Power company, which was to have built a plant for generating electricity. The spot where the skeleton was found is not far from the site of these operations. These Italian men, it is said, were much among themselves at times, they were a reckless, unrestrained crew and it is not beyond the realm of probability that the find of Friday was the Frank A. Bellefontaine Has 186 Views Tattooed Upon Him.

Putnam, though few know of the fact, has a man who carries on his body one of the most remarkable examples of skillful tattooing to be found in America today. This man is Frank A. Bellefontaine, 36, porter at the Putnam hotel, who came here to work a few weeks ago. Not a needle prick shows on the parts of his body visible when he is in his street clothing, yet he is covered from his neck to the very soles of his feet with some of the most artistic and ingenious executed designs ever tattooed on a human body.

Beginning just under his collar, a box containing five feet six and one-half inches in length coils sinuously about his neck. Beneath this is a broad reproduction of the coat of arms of the United States navy, and on his stomach a fine "diamond" of the famous battle of Trafalgar.

His back is given over to a scene showing the battle of San Jacinto, this reproduced from an engraving by special permission of a noted publisher.

An American flag, as a belt, encircles Mr. Bellefontaine's waist.

His right arm shows the crucifixion of Christ, his left arm Rock of Ages. In the palm of his right hand are inscribed 118 different scenes and designs are tattooed on his body. On the sole of his right foot is a Spanish flag, and he says he is the only man in America who walks on that emblem every day. Three years and four months were required to do all the needlework upon him and the cost totals over $500.

Mr. Bellefontaine was with the Barnum & Bailey Circus, and he has traveled all over the United States and Europe. The reception of the designs, which will remain with him until death, caused him considerable pain and suffering, but they cause him absolutely no discomfort now and will always be a source of income to him. He came to follow the tented fields and sawdust circles.
